Dear Neighbor:

Summer is in full swing and our First Metro Bank family sends well wishes for safe and fun-filled adventures this season. Our entire organization is busy making preparations for the many summer events created for our neighbors! It is my pleasure to share new product offerings and upcoming events included in our summer agenda for 2017. As a reminder, when traveling this season, contact our Electronic Banking Department at 256-386-0600 to ensure reliable debit card processing while traveling out of state or outside the country.

Make room in your calendar for our upcoming summertime happenings! First Friends, don't miss the opportunity to attend Barbecue and Bingo on Thursday, July 20th, at the Florence-Lauderdale Coliseum from 6:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m. (see the back of the newsletter for more information). Our largest event of the year, Sax in the City, will take place the very next night, Friday, July 21st, at Wilson Park in Florence. No ticket is required for this free event! The Midnighters will take center stage at 7:30 p.m. to kickoff the famous W.C. Handy Music Festival.

Lastly, First Metro Bank strives to deliver products that cater to your financial needs with a level of service that surpasses your banking expectations. Our Mobile Wallet product line has extended to include Samsung Pay and Android Pay®. Additionally, we are approaching the final stages of the complete overhaul of our website, www.firstmetro.com. The new website will provide useful information pertaining to both your banking needs and the community while offering new, robust services such as online mortgage applications.

This summer, and every other season throughout the year, we value each opportunity to serve you. From our family to yours, best wishes for a safe and enjoyable summer.

Cybersecurity... Are you Protected?

You may have heard the term "WannaCry" in the news lately. WannaCry is the name of a recently released malware that successfully infected over 200,000 computers across the world. At First Metro Bank, our goal is to protect our neighbors and their information. Please consider the following information to keep yourself safe online.

WannaCry was a type of malware called "ransomware." This means that once a computer is infected, the malicious software begins encrypting, or locking up, all of the files on the machine. The criminals spreading the malware then demand payment to release the key necessary to unlock those files. Victims of such an attack can either pay the ransom, or lose the files that were locked.

The effects of an attack like this can be truly devastating. The following tips can help you prevent or recover from a ransomware infection:

- 1. Think Before You Click. Most cyber attacks start through a "phishing" email. This is an email containing a malicious link or attachment. Be absolutely sure every email you receive is legitimate before clicking any links or downloading any attachments.
- 2. Patch Your Devices. Always apply the latest security patches available for any internet-connected device you use. A patch to fix the vulnerability exploited by WannaCry had been available for almost two months before WannaCry was released. Computers that were fully patched were never at risk.
- 3. Backup Your Data. If your computer is ever infected with ransomware, having a recent backup of your data means you don't have to pay the ransom, and all of your files are safe. There are several cloud-based (internet) services that are convenient and affordable, but a local external drive will also work.
